

Observable Trends

The temperature is warmer near the equator.

The cloud coverage data seems to be quantized – there are only certain values that can be had. Probably due to the manner the data is collected.

There seem to be more cities on the globe north of the equator (more data points in positive latitudes).

The humidity is higher near the equator.